About me

Since 2011, I have been providing professional marketing services across all industries. From your local brick and mortar to that international Fortune 500 Company, I have worked with them all. I began as a freelance writer and quickly gained expertise in content writing and Wikipedia editing. In addition to those services, I offer help with SEO, website construction, public relations and more.

Why choose me

There are many reasons why companies, people, and government institutions choose to work with me. The number one reason is integrity. I deliver what you are promised and most of my clients are repeat customers or referrals from others.

I tend to think in terms of the future. Instead of sticking with industry trends, I focus on where the industry is going. Staying ahead of the marketing game is the only way to stand out from your competition.

My services have been featured in Time Magazine, The Atlantic, HubSpot, International Business Times, Financial Times, Advisor One and more. You can see a full list of press coverage at Legalmorning.com (<http://www.legalmorning.com/in-the-news/>).
